System Overview

Students and teachers will have computers and/or tablets that will open a web browser. It will contact the server, on which our frontend code will run. There will be a database which will interact with our backend system, which will then provide the frontend with the necessary elements.